City Holds Community Alley Clean-Up, Removes Dozens of Illegally Dumped Items

On Saturday, October 26, City staff worked together with volunteers and residents to clean up the alley north of 183rd Street and south of Ashworth Street between Arline and Clarkdale Avenues. This collaborative effort not only cleaned and beautified the alley but removed bulky items and illegally dumped refuse from surrounding streets in the community.

City staff from Maintenance, Code Enforcement, and Administration joined with property owners to remove overgrown vegetation, plant debris, trash, and more from the alley. They also removed numerous bulky items in the alley. Residents on adjacent streets saw the alley clean-up in progress and found additional bulky items and illegally dumped trash and helped City staff find and remove those items from adjacent streets. The City's proactive efforts to clean the alley and partner with residents led to an even bigger positive impact for the community.

This alley clean-up was part of a series of clean-ups organized by City staff to help residents keep alleys clean. Per the Artesia Municipal Code, alley maintenance is the responsibility of the property owners adjacent to the alley. The City wants to help make this maintenance easier and more effective, and will continue working with the community to keep Artesia clean and beautiful.
